Cozy is a real suburban house, the seat of the happy family. The house emanates peace, stability, but also the joy and energy - all thanks to the combination of traditional elements with modern architecture. Body of the building with protruding garage perfectly blends into narrow plot. The interior of house was planned by separating the living area on the ground floor (where in addition to living room there is also a technical room and office and bathroom) from the bedroom in the attic. On the first floor there are three comfortable bedrooms, dressing room and bathroom. In this project each bedroom has a balcony. There is also available mirror version of this house plan.
